Educational purpose. This book provides general business information and ideas. It is not legal, tax, financial, medical or professional advice. Rules, platform policies and fees change; verify current details with official sources and qualified professionals before acting.

No income guarantees. Examples, scenarios and price ranges are illustrations. Results depend on effort, skill, market conditions and many other factors. Most sellers do not earn the highest figures quoted in public case studies.

About the numbers. Figures attributed to third parties (sales shares, creator revenue, platform fees) were gathered from public web sources in 2026, are reported as published, and have not been independently audited. Sections marked 'Worked scenario' are hypothetical models, not reported results. The 1-5 scores on each idea page are editorial judgments by the author, intended to help you compare ideas, not measurements.

Trademarks. Product and company names (for example Etsy, Notion, Canva, Gumroad, Payhip, Lemon Squeezy, Shopify, Zapier, Make, Procreate, Lightroom) belong to their owners and are used for identification only. No endorsement is implied.

AI assistance. This book was researched and produced with the assistance of an AI model and edited for structure and clarity. If you adapt its ideas, apply your own verification and originality.

Welcome: How to Use This Book

You do not need an audience, a technical background or a big budget to start selling digital products. You need a clear problem to solve, a person who has that problem, and a method to test whether they will pay. This book gives you all three.

It is organised as a working manual, in three parts:

- Part I: The Foundation (Chapters 1-7). How digital products make money, the Problem-First Framework, seven ways to validate demand, pricing, platforms, AI as a production partner, and legal basics.
- Part II: The 100 Ideas. Ten categories of ten ideas. Each idea page gives you the problem, the buyer, what to sell, a starting price, a real-world example, an implementation plan, a validation test for this week, and a ready-to-use AI prompt.
- Part III: Launch, Sell and Scale (Chapters 8-13). A 30-day roadmap, the sales page formula, traffic and email, metrics and iteration, and the mistakes that cost sellers the most.

Three ways to read this book

If you are...	Do this
Brand new and overwhelmed	Read Chapters 1-3, then the 'Top 15' list at the start of Part II. Choose one idea and follow the 30-day roadmap in Chapter 8.
An expert with a skill to monetise	Browse the category that matches your field. Read three idea pages in full, then jump to Chapter 3 to validate the one you like best.
A freelancer or agency	Start with Ideas 31-40 and 91-93; use your client work as a source of products (Chapter 3, Method 7).

How to use the AI prompts

Every idea page ends with a prompt for an AI assistant. Replace anything in [BRACKETS] with your details, and treat the answer as a first draft: verify facts, add your own experience and make it original (see Chapter 6).

A promise and a warning

Follow the process and you will decide faster and waste less time building things nobody wants. But no book can guarantee sales: start small and test fast.

PART I

The Foundation

Before you pick a product, learn how digital products make money, how buyers decide, and how to prove demand before you build.

Chapter 1: The Digital Product Economy

A digital product is anything you can deliver as a file or online access: a spreadsheet, a template, a guide, a video lesson, a font, a browser tool. You create it once and can sell it many times. There is no inventory, no shipping and, in most cases, no waiting for a supplier. That is why so many first-time entrepreneurs begin here.

Why digital products are attractive

- Low startup cost. Many products in this book can be made with free or low-cost tools: Google Sheets, Canva, Notion, a screen recorder.
- High margins. Industry guides commonly describe margins between roughly 70% and 95% per sale once platform and payment fees are paid, because the marginal cost of one more copy is close to zero.
- Instant delivery. The buyer pays and receives the file in seconds, at any hour, anywhere in the world.
- Scalability. Services are limited by your hours. A product can be sold to ten or ten thousand people with the same creation effort.
- Testability. You can launch a small version, see whether people pay, and improve it.

What actually sells

Real sales data helps cut through opinion. The platform Sellfy published a breakdown of what its sellers actually sold. Notice that services, design assets and video outsell ebooks and courses by a wide margin, a useful reminder that 'digital product' is a much bigger category than 'ebook'.

Other 2026 industry roundups agree on the broad picture: by revenue, higher-priced and recurring products such as courses, memberships and software lead; by unit volume, templates, printables and low-priced ebooks lead. Both matter. Low-priced products bring many customers quickly; higher-priced ones build income.

The honest truth: you are not guaranteed income

Case studies make good stories, but they are survivors. Some creators have reportedly earned very large sums from templates; many sellers earn little or nothing for months. One 2026 first-person case study of a seller with 30 Notion templates on Etsy reported about $1,340 in six months, and noted that just three of the 30 templates produced roughly 70% of the revenue. Another seller reported two months of zero sales before the first $50. This is normal: a few products carry the business, and the early months are about learning.

> What this means for you
> Treat your first product as an experiment, not a lottery ticket. Your goals for the first 30 days are evidence and learning: Do people care? Will they pay? What do they ask? Income follows evidence.

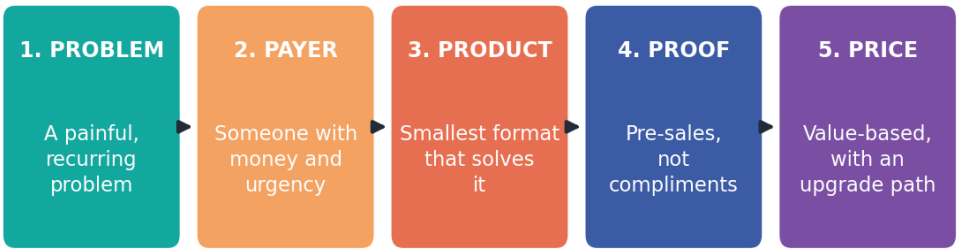

The four ways digital products earn money

Model	How it earns	Best for	Example in this book
One-time sale	Customer pays once for a file or access	Templates, guides, presets	Ideas 1, 14, 21

Model	How it earns	Best for	Example in this book
Tiered licence	Higher price for commercial or team use	Fonts, designs, templates	Ideas 84, 90
Recurring	Monthly or yearly fee for ongoing value	Communities, tools, updates	Ideas 94, 99, 100
Service-to-product	Convert repeated client work into a product	Consultants, freelancers	Ideas 31, 36, 93

Chapter 2: The Problem-First Framework

The title of this book is deliberate: 'Digital Product Ideas Matched to Problems People Pay to Solve.' Beginners start with the product ('I will make a planner') and then look for buyers. Professionals start with the problem, then find the smallest product that solves it. The order matters because buyers do not purchase files; they purchase relief, progress or an advantage.

The five problems people reliably pay to solve

Problem type	What the buyer feels	Typical products
Save time	'I do this every week and hate it.'	Templates, automations, checklists, swipe files
Save money	'I am wasting money and don't know where.'	Budget sheets, subscription audits, DIY guides
Make money	'I want a better job, more clients, more sales.'	Resume kits, proposals, pricing tools, marketing templates
Reduce risk or stress	'I might forget something important.'	Binders, checklists, SOPs, compliance-aware kits
Reach a goal	'I want to learn, get fit, pass the exam.'	Study guides, plans, courses, journals

The Pain Scorecard

Before committing to an idea, score the problem from 1 (weak) to 5 (strong) on each question. Anything under 15 out of 25 should be reshaped or dropped.

1. Frequency: Does the problem occur weekly or daily?
2. Intensity: Does it cause real frustration, cost or fear?
3. Urgency: Is there a deadline (exam, tax season, wedding, job search)?
4. Willingness to pay: Are people already paying for partial solutions?
5. Reachability: Do you know where these people gather online?

Seven product formats

Format	Typical build time	Typical price	Skill needed
Template or spreadsheet	1-5 days	$7-$49	Low-medium
Printable or planner	1-3 days	$5-$25	Low
Guide or ebook	1-3 weeks	$9-$49	Medium
Course or workshop	2-6 weeks	$29-$299	Medium-high
Design or media asset	1-4 weeks	$9-$99	Medium-high
Software or tool	4-12 weeks	$5-$29/mo	High (or no-code)
Community or subscription	Ongoing	$9-$49/mo	Medium

These time and price ranges are rules of thumb drawn from the product examples in this book and from industry guides; your own results will vary with niche, quality and audience.

Chapter 3: The Market Validation Playbook

Validation answers one question: will real people pay for this? The cheapest time to discover the answer is before you build. Every method below can be done in days, with little or no money.

Method 1: The Search Test

Search your product idea on Google, Etsy, Pinterest and YouTube. You are looking for three things: whether people search for it, whether others sell it, and whether there are reviews and sales numbers. Competition is usually good news: it proves demand. Your task is to differentiate by niche, quality or format, not to find a market with no competitors.

- Type the idea into Google and note autocomplete suggestions.
- On Etsy, filter by best-selling and read the 3-star reviews: complaints reveal gaps you can fill.
- Note prices. If every competitor charges $5-$9, a $49 product needs a clear reason to exist.

Method 2: The Customer Interview (the 'Mom Test' principle)

Talk to five to ten people in your target group. Do not pitch your idea; ask about their life and past behaviour. People will say 'cool idea' to be polite, and that signal is worthless. Their actual behaviour, such as what they already paid for and how they solve the problem today, is real.

- 'Tell me about the last time you had to [do the task].'
- 'What did you try? What did it cost you in time or money?'
- 'What is the most annoying part?'
- 'Have you paid for anything to help with this? What was missing?'

AI PROMPT

Act as a customer-research coach. I want to understand how [TARGET PERSON] currently handles [PROBLEM]. Write 12 interview questions about past behaviour (not opinions about my idea), plus a one-paragraph script to invite someone to a 15-minute call without selling anything.

Method 3: The Social Test

Post a sample, a screenshot or a question in places where your audience gathers: relevant communities, LinkedIn, Pinterest, Facebook groups or subreddits. Follow each community's rules on self-promotion. Count saves, comments, direct messages and requests for the file. Requests are stronger than likes.

Method 4: The Landing Page (Smoke) Test

Build a simple one-page site in a free tool with a headline, three benefits, a mock-up image and a single button: 'Join the waitlist' or 'Get early access'. Send 50-200 targeted visitors from posts or a small ad budget. A common benchmark among practitioners is that a meaningful share of targeted visitors should join if the pain is acute; if almost nobody does, change the message before you build.

Method 5: The Fake-Door Test

Add a 'Buy now' button for a product that does not yet exist. When someone clicks, show a message that it launches soon, collect their email and offer a founding-member discount. This tests price and intent. Be honest: do not take payments for something you cannot deliver.

Method 6: The Pre-Sale (the strongest test)

Offer the product at a founders' price before it is finished and deliver by a stated date. Practitioners consistently rank pre-payment as the strongest signal; a paid or card-backed waitlist is stronger than a free email waitlist, because it separates curiosity from intent. A common rule of thumb in indie communities is to get at least five paying customers before building the full product.

> Waitlist signups are not demand
> Free signups can be misleading. Move people from 'interested' to 'paid' as soon as possible: a pre-sale, a deposit, or a paid pilot.

Method 7: Sell the Service First

Some experienced sellers recommend selling a service in your niche before creating a product. Every client project reveals repeated questions and tasks, and those repeated tasks become your product. A freelancer who writes the same onboarding email twenty times has just found Idea 31.

The Validation Scorecard

Test	Pass signal (suggested thresholds)	Your result
Search / marketplace	Visible demand and at least a few competitors with sales
Interviews	4 of 5 describe the problem unprompted and have tried to solve it
Social test	At least 10 genuine requests, DMs or saves from a small audience
Waitlist	Meaningful share of targeted visitors join
Pre-sale	5 or more paying customers before the full build

These thresholds are suggestions, not scientific cut-offs. Use them to force an honest decision: go, adjust, or stop.

Chapter 4: Monetization and Pricing Strategy

The price ladder

Single products rarely build a business. A ladder of related products does: each rung solves the next problem your customer will have and moves them toward higher-value offers.

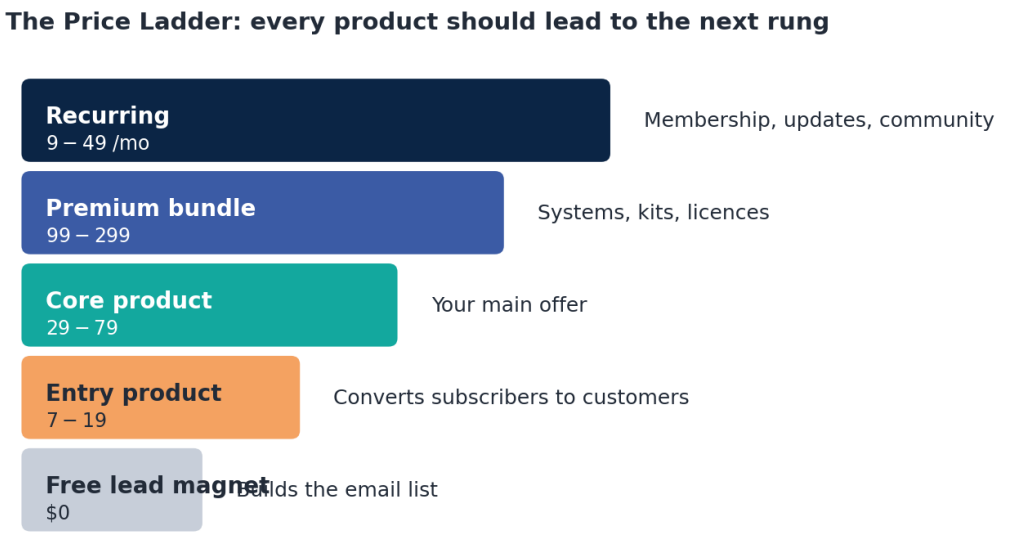

Figure 4.1: The price ladder. Free content earns trust; each higher rung should solve a bigger problem.

How to choose a price

- Anchor on the value of the problem. A $15 template that saves two hours is easy to justify; a $15 PDF of generic tips is not.
- Check competitors, then position. Price in line with comparable quality, or higher with clear extras (video, support, updates).
- Use good-better-best tiers. For example, template only ($19), template plus video ($39), template plus video plus licence for clients ($79).
- Avoid the race to the bottom. If you cannot compete on price, compete on specificity: a template for dentists beats a template for everyone.
- Test and adjust. Raise the price if buyers never question it and sales are steady.

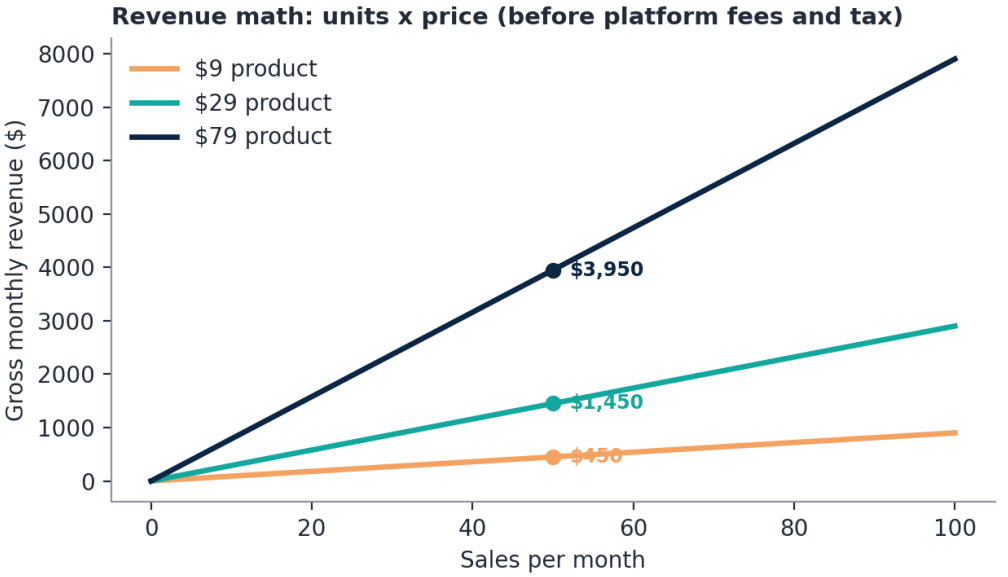

Figure 4.2: The same effort at three price points. A higher price needs fewer sales to reach the same revenue, but must be justified by value.

Bundles, upsells and recurring revenue

- Bundles raise average order value. They also reduce the share lost to fixed per-transaction fees, because one $49 sale pays a single fixed fee instead of three.
- Order bumps and upsells offer a related add-on at checkout, such as a bonus template.
- Updates as a subscription. Quarterly updates to a job-board list or a content calendar create reasons to renew.
- Licences. Charge more for commercial or team use of designs, fonts and templates.
- Affiliate links. If you recommend tools you genuinely use, disclose the relationship and keep your recommendations honest.

Launch pricing

Start with a founders' discount, then raise the price as you add reviews and features. Always tell the truth about discounts: a 'regular price' should be a price you genuinely intend to charge.

Chapter 5: Where to Sell: Platforms, Fees and Rules

You can sell on a marketplace (buyers come to the site) or on your own storefront (you bring the buyers). Marketplaces give you traffic and competition; storefronts give you control and customer data. Many sellers use both.

Platform	Best for	Reported fees (mid-2026)	Notes
Etsy	Printables, planners, templates	Listing and transaction fees (verify current)	Huge buyer traffic; strict Creativity Standards; AI disclosure; AI prompt bundles not allowed
Gumroad	Simple creator store	About 10% + $0.50 per direct sale	No monthly fee; quick setup
Payhip	Digital downloads, memberships	Free plan about 5%; paid plans lower or 0%	Reported to pay out at sale time
Lemon Squeezy	Software, SaaS, global tax	About 5% + $0.50	Merchant of record handles tax
Podia / Stan Store / Skool	Courses, memberships, link-in-bio	Monthly plans, often 0% transaction fee on paid tiers	Check each plan
Notion Marketplace	Notion templates	Platform terms apply	Template-specific audience
Canva marketplace / Creative Market	Design assets	Revenue-share terms apply	Design-focused buyers

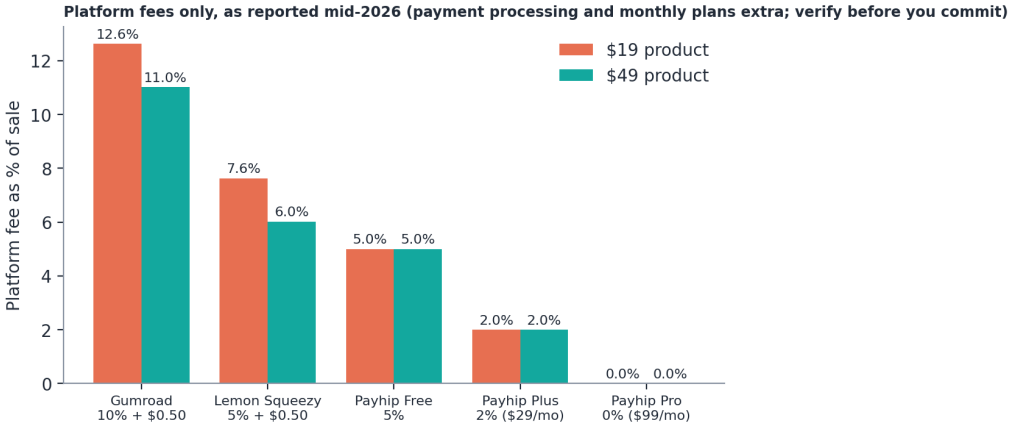

Figure 5.1: Platform fee as a share of a $19 and a $49 sale. Fixed per-transaction fees hurt low-priced products most.

Verify before you commit

Fees and policies change often and vary by plan, country and payment method. The figures above come from 2026 comparison articles and platform pages; confirm everything on the platform's own pricing page before you decide.

Etsy's Creativity Standards (important)

Etsy requires sellers to be honest about who created what. Digital downloads of your own original designs are allowed, and AI-assisted creations based on your original prompts are allowed with disclosure in the listing. Etsy's own rules also list AI prompt bundles as not allowed. If you plan to sell prompt libraries (Idea 91), use your own store, Gumroad, Payhip or a similar platform. Reselling templates or clip art as-is is not allowed, so always create original work.

A simple decision guide

- Selling printables, planners or wall art? Start on Etsy, add your own store later.
- Selling Notion templates? Use Notion Marketplace plus Gumroad or Payhip.
- Selling courses, communities or tools? Use a course/community platform or your own site.
- Selling to a global audience? Prefer a merchant-of-record platform that handles sales tax and VAT.

Chapter 6: Using AI as Your Production Partner

AI tools can compress weeks of work into days: researching buyer language, outlining, drafting copy, generating spreadsheet formulas, and producing variations. They can also produce generic, inaccurate or unoriginal output. The professional approach is simple: AI is the assistant; you are the publisher.

Seven rules for AI-assisted products

1. Verify every fact. AI can state wrong numbers, rules and prices confidently. Check them against official sources.
2. Add real experience. Examples, screenshots and tested steps are what buyers pay for.
3. Make it original. Never paste AI output unedited; rewrite in a distinct voice.
4. Test formulas and templates. Open the spreadsheet and try edge cases.

5. Disclose where required. Follow each marketplace's AI rules.
6. Protect privacy. Do not paste customer data into AI tools.
7. Check licences. Ensure fonts, images and icons you use allow commercial use.

Five master prompts for every product

AI PROMPT

RESEARCH: Act as a market researcher. For [PRODUCT IDEA] aimed at [AUDIENCE], list the 15 most common complaints and desires in their own words, 10 objections to buying, and 10 search phrases they might use. Mark anything you are unsure about so I can verify it.

STRUCTURE: Create a detailed outline for [PRODUCT] that solves [PROBLEM] for [AUDIENCE]. Show the sections, what each one achieves for the buyer, and the order that gets them a result fastest.

AI PROMPT

DRAFT: Using this outline, write the first draft of section [X] in a practical, expert tone. Include a concrete example and a checklist. Do not invent statistics; use placeholders where data is needed.

CRITIQUE: Act as a sceptical buyer who has paid for similar products and been disappointed. Review this draft and list what is generic, unclear, missing or unconvincing. Then suggest specific fixes.

SALES COPY: Write a product page for [PRODUCT]: a headline, a one-sentence promise, five benefit bullets, a 'what is inside' list, three objections answered, and a short FAQ. Avoid exaggerated income claims.

Chapter 7: Legal, Licensing and Trust Basics

This chapter is a practical orientation, not legal or tax advice. Rules differ by country and change over time; consult a qualified professional for your situation.

The essentials

- Originality and copyright. Create your own work. Do not copy competitors' templates, and do not use characters, brands or logos you do not own. Themes based on well-known characters are a common reason for takedowns.
- Licences for what you use. Fonts, stock images, icons and music each have terms. Keep a record of licences for every asset in your products.
- Your own licence terms. State clearly what buyers may do: personal use, commercial use, team use, resale (usually not allowed). Put it on the product page and in the file.
- Disclaimers. Finance, health, legal and fitness products should state that they provide general information, not professional advice, and should avoid income, health or outcome guarantees.
- Refund policy. Digital products are easy to copy, so many sellers limit refunds, but some marketplaces and countries set rules. Decide and publish your policy.
- Privacy. If you collect emails, tell people how you use them and honour unsubscribe requests. Never ask buyers to send sensitive personal data.
- Taxes. Selling to customers in different countries can trigger VAT, GST or sales tax obligations. Merchant-of-record platforms handle much of this for a fee; otherwise you may need to register and file. Keep clean records and ask an accountant.
- Honest marketing. Avoid fake scarcity, invented testimonials and unrealistic earnings claims.

> Trust is a product feature
> Clear licensing, honest descriptions, real screenshots and responsive support turn first-time buyers into reviewers and repeat customers.

PART II

The 100 Ideas

Ten categories. Ten ideas each.
Every idea is matched to a problem people already pay to solve.

How to Read an Idea Page

Each idea page follows the same structure so you can compare quickly:

Section	What it tells you
The problem it solves	The pain in the buyer's own terms
Who pays	The specific person who buys
What you sell	Format and tools
Suggested starting price	A range to test, not a rule
Real-world example	What the product looks like in practice
Market signal	Reported third-party evidence, where available
Worked scenario	An illustrative model of how the product could be built and sold
How to implement it	Four concrete steps
Validate it this week	The cheapest test of demand
AI prompt	A starting prompt to accelerate your work

The three-bar scorecard at the top of each page rates ease of creation, demand signal and profit margin from 1 to 5. These are the author's judgments, drawn from the research for this book. The small icon beside the scorecard hints at the product format.

Figure II.1: All 100 ideas plotted by ease and demand. Ideas in the upper right are the easiest to start and have the strongest demand signal.

The top 15 starting points

If you are a beginner, begin here. These 15 ideas have the best combined score for ease, demand and margin. They are quick to create, easy to validate and simple to explain.

Category 1: Money & Personal Finance

CATEGORY 1 | IDEAS 1-10

Money & Personal Finance

Money problems are among the oldest and most consistent reasons people pay for help. Buyers feel stress, have a clear goal (stop overspending, pay off debt, plan a wedding) and understand the value of a tool that gives them control. Products in this category are mostly spreadsheets and printables, which are fast to build and easy to demonstrate with screenshots. The golden rule: sell organisation and education, never personalised financial advice, and keep disclaimers visible.

MONEY & PERSONAL FINANCE | IDEA 1 OF 100

The Zero-Based Budget Spreadsheet

Ease of creation	5/5
Demand signal	5/5
Profit margin	5/5

Author's editorial scores, 1-5

THE PROBLEM IT SOLVES

Most people earn money but cannot say where it went by the end of the month. A blank spreadsheet is intimidating, so they never start.

WHO PAYS

Salaried workers aged 22-40, young couples, anyone who has just moved out or started a first job.

WHAT YOU SELL

Google Sheets and Excel file with a dashboard tab, plus a one-page PDF quick-start. Built in Google Sheets; sold as a 'Make a copy' link and an .xlsx.

SUGGESTED STARTING PRICE

$9-$29; bundle with a debt tracker at $39

REAL-WORLD EXAMPLE

A 'Paycheck-to-Plan' sheet where the buyer types monthly income, and categories (rent, food, savings) auto-fill with percentages and turn red when overspent. A tab for each month and a yearly summary chart make it feel like software, not a grid.

MARKET SIGNAL (REPORTED BY THIRD PARTIES)

Third-party creator reports describe spreadsheet sellers on Etsy reaching six figures; one widely cited seller, Emily McDermott, is reported to have earned over $280,000 from spreadsheets.

HOW TO IMPLEMENT IT

1. Interview 5 people about how they budget today and what makes them quit.
2. Build one clean sheet with locked formulas and colour-coded inputs.
3. Record a 3-minute screen walkthrough and add it to the product page.
4. List on Etsy and your own store; photograph the dashboard on laptop and phone mockups.

VALIDATE IT THIS WEEK

Post a screenshot of the dashboard in two personal-finance communities and count saves, comments and DMs asking for the file.

Act as a spreadsheet designer. Design a zero-based monthly budget template in Google Sheets for a salaried employee. List the tabs, the columns on each tab, the exact formulas for 'remaining to budget', category over/under status and a yearly summary, and a colour scheme. Then write a 120-word product description for Etsy.

MONEY & PERSONAL FINANCE | IDEA 2 OF 100

Debt Snowball and Avalanche Tracker

Ease of creation	4/5
Demand signal	5/5
Profit margin	5/5

Author's editorial scores, 1-5

THE PROBLEM IT SOLVES

People with several credit cards or loans feel stuck. They do not know which to pay first or when they will be debt-free.

WHO PAYS

Adults carrying consumer debt who want a visible, motivating plan.

WHAT YOU SELL

Spreadsheet with both payoff methods side by side, a printable progress thermometer, and a short guide PDF.

SUGGESTED STARTING PRICE

$12-$25

REAL-WORLD EXAMPLE

The buyer enters each debt, balance, rate and minimum payment. The sheet calculates the payoff date under the snowball method (smallest balance first) and the avalanche method (highest interest first) and shows total interest saved. A printable coloured-in thermometer adds the emotional hook.

HOW TO IMPLEMENT IT

1. Build the payoff calculator and test it against three worked examples.
2. Add a printable progress tracker designed in Canva.
3. Write a plain-language guide explaining both methods and when each fits.
4. Add a clear note that the product is educational and not financial advice.

VALIDATE IT THIS WEEK

Search 'debt snowball spreadsheet' on Etsy and Google; if you see many listings with hundreds of reviews, demand is proven, and your job is to differentiate on design and clarity.

AI PROMPT

Write the formulas and layout for a Google Sheets debt payoff tracker that compares the snowball and avalanche methods. Include inputs, the monthly schedule logic, total interest comparison and a 'debt-free date' cell.
Explain each formula in plain English so a beginner can maintain it.

3 Freelancer Income and Tax Set-Aside Tracker

Ease of creation	4/5
Demand signal	4/5
Profit margin	5/5

Author's editorial scores, 1-5

THE PROBLEM IT SOLVES

Freelancers have irregular income and are surprised by tax bills. They need to know how much to set aside from every payment.

WHO PAYS

Freelancers, consultants, gig workers and creators who are paid per project.

WHAT YOU SELL

Spreadsheet with income log, expense log, quarterly estimate area and a 'safe to spend' number. Rates are editable inputs, never hard-coded.

SUGGESTED STARTING PRICE

$19-$39

REAL-WORLD EXAMPLE

Each time a client pays, the freelancer logs the amount; the sheet instantly shows the percentage to move to a tax account (the buyer sets the rate based on their accountant's advice) and the remaining 'safe to spend' balance.

HOW TO IMPLEMENT IT

1. Make the tax rate a user input with a visible disclaimer.
2. Create country-specific versions only if you can verify the rules; otherwise keep it generic.
3. Add monthly and yearly charts.
4. Sell a 'Freelancer Finance Bundle' with the budget sheet and invoice templates.

VALIDATE IT THIS WEEK

Ask in freelancer groups: 'How do you decide how much to set aside from each invoice?' Count answers that reveal frustration.

AI PROMPT

I am creating a tax set-aside tracker for freelancers. Draft the spreadsheet structure (tabs, columns, formulas) and a clear, non-advisory disclaimer. Also write 10 interview questions to ask freelancers about how they track income today.

MONEY & PERSONAL FINANCE | IDEA 4 OF 100

Wedding Budget Planner

Ease of creation	4/5
Demand signal	4/5
Profit margin	5/5

Author's editorial scores, 1-5

THE PROBLEM IT SOLVES

Couples underestimate wedding costs and fight about money because nobody tracks deposits, balances and who is paying for what.

WHO PAYS

Engaged couples and parents contributing to a wedding.

WHAT YOU SELL

Spreadsheet and printable PDF with vendor cost estimates, deposits, due dates and a 'who pays' column.

SUGGESTED STARTING PRICE

$9-$24

REAL-WORLD EXAMPLE

A planner with a default category list (venue, catering, photography, attire, travel) where each line shows estimated, actual and paid amounts; a pie chart shows where the money goes and a countdown highlights upcoming payments.

HOW TO IMPLEMENT IT

1. Research typical cost categories from three planning blogs and cross-check them.
2. Build with conditional formatting for overdue payments.
3. Create Pinterest pins showing the dashboard.
4. Bundle with a wedding checklist (Idea 71).

VALIDATE IT THIS WEEK

Create two Pinterest pins and watch saves for seven days; saves on wedding topics are a strong interest signal.

Create a complete list of wedding budget categories and subcategories with a column structure for estimate, actual, deposit paid, balance due, due date and payer. Then suggest 15 Pinterest pin title ideas for a wedding budget planner.

5 Net Worth and Investment Portfolio Tracker

Ease of creation	4/5
Demand signal	4/5
Profit margin	5/5

Author's editorial scores, 1-5

THE PROBLEM IT SOLVES

People hold money across banks, brokerages and retirement accounts, and have no single view of progress.

WHO PAYS

Self-directed savers and early investors who like to see long-term progress.

WHAT YOU SELL

Spreadsheet with monthly snapshots, asset allocation chart and net worth line chart.

SUGGESTED STARTING PRICE

$15-$39

REAL-WORLD EXAMPLE

A monthly 'snapshot' tab where the buyer types balances; the dashboard shows net worth over time and an allocation doughnut. No bank connection needed, which also removes privacy worries.

HOW TO IMPLEMENT IT

1. Keep inputs manual so you never touch sensitive data.
2. Add a 'milestones' section (first 10,000, first 100,000).
3. Offer a version for families and one for couples.
4. State clearly that it is a tracking tool, not investment advice.

VALIDATE IT THIS WEEK

Post a mock screenshot with sample numbers and ask which charts people want most.

AI PROMPT

Design a net worth tracker in Google Sheets: tabs, columns, formulas for assets, liabilities, net worth over time and asset allocation percentages.
Suggest five 'milestone' features that make tracking motivating.

MONEY & PERSONAL FINANCE | IDEA 6 OF 100

Small-Business Bookkeeping Template

Ease of creation	3/5
Demand signal	4/5
Profit margin	5/5

Author's editorial scores, 1-5

THE PROBLEM IT SOLVES

Tiny businesses and side hustles keep receipts in a shoebox and panic at tax time.

WHO PAYS

Sole proprietors, Etsy sellers, small service businesses.

WHAT YOU SELL

Spreadsheet with income, expense, category summary, monthly profit and loss, and an accountant-ready export tab.

SUGGESTED STARTING PRICE

$19-$49

REAL-WORLD EXAMPLE

A one-file system: log each sale and expense, choose a category from a drop-down, and the profit-and-loss summary updates by month and quarter. A final tab formats everything the way an accountant likes to receive it.

HOW TO IMPLEMENT IT

1. Ask a bookkeeper to review your category list.
2. Add sample data so buyers see how it works.
3. Create a 5-minute video tutorial.
4. Sell a niche version (e.g., for photographers, for Etsy sellers).

VALIDATE IT THIS WEEK

Pre-sell to 5 small business owners at a launch discount before finishing the design.

AI PROMPT

Draft a chart of accounts and category drop-down list for a small service business, and design the formulas for a monthly profit and loss summary in a spreadsheet. Add a plain-language note recommending users consult an accountant.

MONEY & PERSONAL FINANCE | IDEA 7 OF 100

7 Subscription Audit and Cancellation Toolkit

Ease of creation	5/5
Demand signal	3/5
Profit margin	5/5

Author's editorial scores, 1-5

THE PROBLEM IT SOLVES

People pay for forgotten subscriptions and do not know how to find or cancel them.

WHO PAYS

Anyone with several streaming, app and software subscriptions; households and small teams.

WHAT YOU SELL

Spreadsheet plus a checklist PDF and cancellation-message templates.

SUGGESTED STARTING PRICE

$7-$15

REAL-WORLD EXAMPLE

The toolkit walks a person through scanning bank statements, listing every subscription, scoring it by value, and sending a ready-made cancellation email. A 'yearly cost' counter creates a moment of shock that sells the product.

HOW TO IMPLEMENT IT

1. Build the tracker and a 3-step audit method.
2. Write cancellation scripts for common situations.
3. Create a short viral video: 'I found $600 a year I did not know I was spending'.
4. Upsell to the budget sheet (Idea 1).

VALIDATE IT THIS WEEK

Post a short video or carousel on the 'annual cost of subscriptions' idea and measure shares.

AI PROMPT

Write a step-by-step method for auditing personal subscriptions from bank statements, a scoring system to decide keep or cancel, and five polite cancellation email templates. Keep the tone friendly and practical.

Demand signal	4/5
Profit margin	5/5

Author's editorial scores, 1-5

THE PROBLEM IT SOLVES

First-time buyers do not know the steps, the costs beyond the deposit, or what to ask.

WHO PAYS

Renters planning their first purchase.

WHAT YOU SELL

Ebook-style PDF checklist plus a calculator spreadsheet for upfront costs and monthly affordability.

SUGGESTED STARTING PRICE

$17-$39

REAL-WORLD EXAMPLE

A timeline from 'two years out' to 'closing day', with checklists, questions for lenders and inspectors, and a spreadsheet to estimate closing costs and monthly payments. Localised versions (by country or state) can command higher prices.

HOW TO IMPLEMENT IT

1. Choose one country or state, since rules differ.
2. Verify every cost item with official or government sources and cite them.
3. Add a glossary of mortgage terms.
4. Make clear it is general information, not legal or financial advice.

VALIDATE IT THIS WEEK

AI PROMPT

WHAT YOU SELL

Printable PDF binder with fillable pages (contacts, accounts, insurance, medical contacts, instructions, digital accounts list).

SUGGESTED STARTING PRICE

$12-$27

REAL-WORLD EXAMPLE

3. Offer a quick-start video.
4. Never ask buyers to send you any personal data.

Ask 10 people over 35 whether they have such a binder; those who say 'no, I should' are your first buyers.

AI PROMPT

(sections, fields on each page, and instructions). Write an empathetic, non-alarmist introduction of 150 words.

Category 3: Career & Job Search

CATEGORY 3 | IDEAS 21-30

Career & Job Search

Job seekers and career changers are motivated, time-pressured buyers: the cost of staying stuck is high, and a small purchase feels like an easy step. Demand is seasonal (new year, graduation, review season) and highly searchable. Products here win on specificity (a resume for nurses) and on proof, such as before-and-after examples.

Category 10: AI, Tech & Software

AI and technology products range from low-cost prompt libraries to full software tools. The lower rungs (prompt guides, automation templates, dashboards) can be created without coding; the higher rungs (micro-SaaS, plugins) need technical skill or no-code tools, and ongoing support. Always validate before building software, and respect platform rules, privacy law and policies when handling user data.

Professionals know AI tools exist but get generic output because they do not know how to ask for what they need.

WHO PAYS

Marketers, teachers, recruiters, real-estate agents, accountants and other busy professionals.

WHAT YOU SELL

PART III

Launch, Sell and Scale

You have chosen an idea and validated it. Now turn it into a live product, a clear message and a repeatable sales system.

Chapter 8: Your 30-Day Launch Roadmap

A launch is a sequence of small, concrete actions. The chart below shows a realistic one-person plan; compress or extend it to suit your schedule.

Days	Goal	Concrete actions
1-3	Choose problem and payer	Score three ideas with the Pain Scorecard; choose one; define the buyer in one sentence.
2-6	Research	Run the Search Test; interview five people; collect their exact phrases.
5-10	Validate	Landing page, fake door or pre-sale; set a target (e.g., 5 pre-sales).
8-16	Build version 1	Make the smallest product that solves the core problem; use AI as a drafting partner; test.
15-20	Beta	Give it to 5-10 people for feedback in exchange for honest reviews.
17-22	Sales page and store	Write the page (Chapter 9); photograph mock-ups; set up the platform and policies.

Days	Goal	Concrete actions
23-26	Launch	Announce to your list and communities; post daily; answer every question.
26-30	Learn and iterate	Collect reviews; fix gaps; plan the next product on the ladder.

Chapter 9: The Sales Page Formula

A sales page has one job: help the right buyer decide quickly. Use this structure, which works for templates, guides and courses alike.

1. Headline: The result the buyer wants, in their words.
2. Sub-headline: Who it is for and how fast they get the result.
3. Visual proof: A clear mock-up, screenshot or short video of the product in use.
4. The problem: Two or three sentences that show you understand their frustration.
5. The solution: What the product is, and what is inside.
6. Benefits, not features: 'Know exactly what you can spend' beats 'includes 12 tabs'.
7. Social proof: Real reviews, beta-user quotes, numbers you can verify.
8. Objections: Answer price, difficulty and compatibility in an FAQ.
9. Offer and call to action: Price, what is included, licence terms, and one button.
10. Risk reversal: A clear support or refund policy.

Act as a conversion copywriter. Using this product description: [PASTE], write a sales page in the 10-part structure above for [AUDIENCE]. Use plain language, no exaggerated claims, and mark with brackets anything that needs real proof from me (screenshots, reviews, numbers).

Product images that sell

- Show the product in context: on a laptop, a tablet, a printed page, a desk.
- Use 5-8 listing images: cover, what is inside, how it works, who it is for, compatibility, bonus, FAQ.
- Make text readable on a phone screen.
- Add a short demo video or GIF where possible.

Chapter 10: Traffic, Email and Customer Acquisition

Even a great product needs people to find it. The most dependable channels for new digital sellers are search (marketplace and web), Pinterest, short-form video, communities and an email list. Pick two channels and do them consistently; spreading yourself across ten achieves nothing.

Illustrative assumptions only: your own rates will differ. 12 buyers x 29 = 348 from one campaign.

Channel	Why it works	First actions
Marketplace SEO (Etsy, Notion)	Buyers are already searching	Research keywords; use specific titles and tags; strong images
Pinterest	Pins keep working for months	Create 5 pin designs per product; link to the product page
Short-form video	Shows the product in action	Screen-record a 30-second demo; show the before and after
Communities and forums	Direct access to the pain	Be helpful first; follow self-promotion rules
Email list	Owned audience; highest conversion	Lead magnet, welcome sequence, monthly useful email

Channel	Why it works	First actions
Partnerships	Borrow trust	Offer an affiliate arrangement to creators in your niche

Lead magnets that build a list

A lead magnet is a small free gift in exchange for an email address: a mini-template, a checklist, a sample chapter or a short video. It should solve a narrow problem in under ten minutes and lead naturally to the paid product. After sign-up, send a short welcome sequence (Idea 44): who you are, the free item, a useful tip, a customer story and a soft offer.

Chapter 11: Metrics, Feedback and Iteration

Metric	What it tells you	What to do if low
Visits to product page	Is your traffic reaching the right people?	Improve titles, images and channels
Conversion rate	Does the page persuade?	Rewrite headline, add proof, clarify price
Average order value	Are bundles and upsells working?	Add a bundle or an add-on
Refund and support rate	Is the product clear and useful?	Improve instructions and onboarding
Repeat purchase rate	Do customers want more?	Build the next product on the ladder
Review rating and comments	What do buyers actually value?	Use their words in your copy

Read every review and message. They are free market research. Group them into themes, fix the top two issues each month and add the best customer phrases to your sales page.

Chapter 12: From One Product to a Portfolio

Sellers who reach steady income usually have a small portfolio, not a single hit. Use the price ladder: start with a free lead magnet, an entry product and a core product; then add a bundle and a recurring offer.

- Create variations. A budget template for couples, for students and for freelancers is three products from one core build.
- Create bundles. Combine related products at a modest discount.
- Create updates. Refresh yearly; mention the year in the title where relevant.
- Document and delegate. As you grow, write SOPs (Idea 20) and hire help for design or support.
- Protect your time. Retire products that cost more to support than they earn.

Chapter 13: Ten Mistakes to Avoid

1. Building before validating.
2. Choosing a topic because it is trendy rather than because you understand the buyer.
3. Making a product for 'everyone'.
4. Copying competitors' designs or text.
5. Ignoring marketplace rules on AI and originality.
6. Underpricing to compete rather than differentiating.
7. Weak images and no proof on the product page.
8. Making unrealistic income or health promises.
9. Spreading across too many channels.
10. Quitting after the first quiet month instead of reading the data and improving.
